The Senate to-day passed a joint resolu-tion authorizing George H. Skidmore, U. S. Vice-Consul-General at Kanagawa, Japan, to accept a silver medal presented to him by the Emperor of Japan for saving a Japanese subject from death by Mr. Blair presented the credentials of his successor. Jacob H. Gallinger, and they were placed on file.

The Senate then went into executive session and a few minutes later when the doors were reopened resumed consideration of the Fortification bill.

HOUSE.

Nouse.

Senate bill was passed for the relief of James H. Smith, late postmaster at Memphis. Tenn.

Mr. McKinley asked unanimous consent that during the remainder of the session the House shall meet at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Rogers of Arkansas objected.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill.

In speaking of the Diplomatic bill Mr. McAdoo of New Jersey gave his hearty assent to the position taken by the Secretary of State in his letter to Representative Baker of New York relative to reciprocity with Canada. He said the United States should have unrestricted trade and commercial union with Canada or it should have no commercial relations with her.

Reported Back to the Senate. Mr. Chandler, from the Naval Commit-tee, reported back to the Senate the bill tee, reported back to the Senate the bill to allow leaves of absence to per diem simployes of the Navy Department. It grants leaves to all master workmen, foremen and quartermen in charge of mechanical and other work of the Government under the direction of the Navy Department who receive per diem pay and thirty days' leave of absence each year, without forfeiture of pay during such leave.

The Top of the Morning to You, Colonel Speer! The friends of Mr. E. P. Speer, the genial and brilliant correspondent of the Atlanta Journal, will be glad to learn that Atlanta Journal, will be glad to learn that he is no more—that is, that he is plain Mister no more. He is now Lieutenant-Colonel on the staff of Governor Northern of Georgia, having just been commissioned. Colonel Speer saw enough service during the war to be able to wear a sword without getting it tangled up with his legs and tripping on it. He is a handsome man, and arrayed in the glittering uniform of his rank, and decked out in the gorgeous paraphernalia of war, will make a truly gallant appearance and prove a superb and splendid addition to the Georgia Governor's military family. The Euror salutes you, Colonel Speer!

The Silver Bill Hearing.
The House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures continued its hear ings on the Senate Silver bill to-day. Mr. ings on the Senate Silver bill to-day. Mr. Carter presented and read a letter from William E. St. John, a banker of New York, urging the passage of the bill.

Francis G. Newkands, vice chairman of the National Silver Committee, spoke in support of the bill.

Kugland, he said, in 1816, had established a gold standard, and, of all nations, the United States was the only one to follow.

Mr. Newlands spoke of the predicted overflow of this country with silver coin from other countries, should a free-coinage bill be passed, and he argued that such would not be the case.

In this connection he gave the amount of silver held by the different countries, and said that most of them were dependent upon the subsidiary coins, and the mass of the people would not consent to part with them, and the condition of the countries would not permit the sole use of gold.

The supply of gold, he said, was insufficient to supply money for the world, would not consent would not permit the sole use of gold.

The supply of gold, he said, was insufficient to supply money for the world, and was demonstrated by the failure of Baring Bros., who were called upon by Russia for 5,000,000 pounds of gold and were unable to meet the demand, as was the Bank of England. France-came to the rescue and supplied the gold, being backed with a surplus of silver, which constituted the greater part of her money.

Mr. Miliken spoke in favor of restoring the subsidiary coin to its fall value.

The committee adjourned until to-morrow.

Owenby Discharged for the world, and with a surplus of silver, which constituted the greater part of her money.

The committee adjourned until to-morrow.

Owenby Discharged from Custody. In the House to-day Mr. Dingley reported a resolution from the Silver Pool Committee discharging J. H. Owenby from the enstody of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Adopted.

Congressman James W. Owens of Ohio is on the warpath. He has been trying to get recognition for the passage of a public building bill at Zanesville, Ohio, but despite the importunities of himself and friends the autocrat of the House refuses to let him call it up. Captain Owens thinks his public building bill is the most meritorious on the calendar, and since the Speaker will not allow it to pass he proposes to enter the already overcrowded list of Treasury watch dogs and object to everything requiring unanimous consent which carries an appropriation with it.

Amendment to the Naval Appropriation Bill.

Senator Hale to-day reported to the Senate from the Committee on Naval Affairs, with a favorable recommendation, an amendment to the Naval Appropriation bill to appropriate $500,000 for a naval repair and coaling station at Pearl River, Hawaiian Islands.

Capitol Notes.

The Senate bill to incorporate the Washington and Arlington Railroad Company was amended in the House yesterday, to limit the issue of the bonds of the road to 50 per cent. of the stock actually paid up, and then passed. Senate bill pensioning the widow of Commander William Starr Dana at the rate of $50 a month passed the House yesterday.

A Correction.

Editor Critic: The publication in The Chiric on the 22d of January relative to grave robbing at Harmony Cemetery does me a great injustice and there is no doubt but that your paper has been grossly imposed upon. The charge that the remains of the late Albert M. Lee were stolen, or in any way disturbed by ghouls is entirely false. No detectives were employed, no money paid, and the whole story is a malicious falsehood and a gross imposition upon your paper and the public.

The facts in the case are as follows: On the 19th day of December last the deceased was brought to the cemetery, and finding it a case of typhoid fever the undertaker and family were informed by me that it could only remain in the vault one week, and the vault card was made out accordingly. On the first day of January, not having heard-from any member of the family, I ordered the body buried in the section for single graves.

About three days afterward three women called at my house to see me, but I was not at home. They met me, however, in the street, and explained to me that they were prevented by bad weather from visiting the cemetery, but had seen my clerk. They said the family owned a half-site. I explained to them the necessity of putting the body in the ground, and at their request called to see Mr. Robinson and fixed a day and hour to have the body disinterred and reinterred. This was done, and the body was viewed through the glass on the coffin by the three women, five workmen and myself. It was in excellent condition and had not been disturbed. Not one cent was charged for disinterrment. The only money paid was $6 for vnultage and $2 for digging the grave.

The whole story of the grave having been robbed and $50 paid to recover the body from the dissecting table of a medical college is absolutely false in every particular. The grounds at the Harmony Cemetery have been enclosed by a high, strong fence. There are two watchmen, well armed, on guard at night, and there has not been any attempt made to steal a body this win

A Pitiful Tale.

From the New York Heroid, 20th.

Tragedies? You needn't go to the theatre and pay a couple of dollars for a good sest from which to view the heroine as the grows desperate and takes poison. You can find within a stone's throw of your home misery enough for all your spare tears.

It is a queer world, and its good fortune and had seem to be very unevenly distributed. There are many with too much and many more with not enough. There are dollars by the bushel in one house and in another not coppers enough to buy a loaf of stale bread.

Take the case of Mary Carlton for example. She tried to commit suicide and now lies on a hospital cot. She is young, but the struggle was too much for her and she swallowed a dose of landanum.

Mary is a product of the tenement district, and perhaps never in her life had quite enough to eat. Long before her teens she went to work; has been working ever since; always thought she was in rare good luck when she could put in twelve hours a day and get sixty cents for it. Now she is 30 years old, is tired of the grind, has breakfasted, dined and supped on despair, and concluded that even in a city full of churches and charities it is easier for a poor girl to die than to live.

"I am very hungry," she said to her landlady. Then she raoved out of her little cheerless room at the top of the house, for which she paid $2.50 per week, into an ill-ventilated closes, with a rentai of half that sum. It was to no purpose, though. She kept hoping, but hope can't last forever. She trulged over the city seeking employment and got none.

At last she pawned her dress, paid her landlady what she could, all except fifty cents, with which she bought the drug. She drained the bottle and waited for death to come.

The doctors may save her life, but what is there to live for? Who cares either for her or for the thousand other Mary Carltons who are vainly trying to keep the wolf from the door?

We are all of one family—are all brothers and sisters. It's a beantiful theory, but only a theory.

In Cornell University there is an organization of students known as the "Mock Congress." It has a Speaker and committees like the House of Representatives. Its members represent the States and the opposing political parties. Billis are introduced and acted upon. It elects a functionary known as "President of the United States," who appoints his Cabinet and is empowered to send in messages. The "Mock Congress" furnishes an excellent political training to its members, and it is probable that an organization of this kind will be started in this city.—New York Sen.

The New Application of Hypnotism.

From the Toketo Blaste.

Hypnotism and studies in hypnotic phenomena have grown in importance during the past few years, until everything written upon the subject is eagerly grasped by the public. Recently a new application of the science, which may revolutionize domestic life and rolleve marriage of many of its terrors, has come to light. Paradoxically, the event happened in Philadelphia. Not long ago George Stearns, a law-abiding citizen of Pennsylvania, entered into the solemn matrimonial contract wearing the conventional black with lawender gloves. Last Christmas Day a little George became a regular worshipper at the Stearns cottage. From his first appearance he excelled in the role of a coyote imitator. The neighbors say he was the worst baby ever born in Philadelphia, and when it is known that that is the place where John Wanamaker was brought up its full meaning can be realized. Stearns grew wild in his mid efforts to calm the kid. The Little Drug Store Around the Corner was absorbing all his sulary for paregoric and soothing syrup. He walked the floor so much nights that his feet were covered with bleeding wounds from stepping on tacks, a rattle-box, the evil rocker and other bedroom paraphernalia.

A few nights ago there was a show in Philadelphia. Kiralfy's Water Queen was billed for the Opera-House, and the Stearnses wanted to go.

But the baby?
Stearns in his desperation lifted up his little George and soothingly rubbed the baby's forehead.

The baby stopped half way in a Sioux yell, gurgled softly, looked at "pa" and immediately went into a soft angelic sleep.

"The "Water Queen" was seen that night, as there was no postponement on immediately went into a soft angelic sleep.

"The "Water Queen" was seen that night, as there was no postponement on account of weather. But the baby slept right along through the next day and the day after. Mr. Stearns thought of Bompard and Eyrand and Madame Devere and other hypnotists and then of Manayun k, where Pennsylvania keeps her tough. If the father had put on a little too much hyp, it was a dangerous experiment, and he realized it.

But the baby inally woke win a yell, and Stearns was happy. Ence then, in pursuit of science, the oaby is very gently hypnotized. Fond mothers of Germantown, Frankland, Jenkintown, Camden and other suburbs of Fhiladelphia are bringing babies to Mr. Stearns to have the hyp, applied, and the latest information is to the effect that he will put out a sign like this:

GEORGE STEARNS. HYPNOTIZED. Must Bring Parents.

"The Retreat of 1814."

"For the latter picture," the New York Tribune relates, "Meissonier had the coat worn by Napoleon I., copied by a tailor with a Chinese exactutude." He put the garment on himself, mounted a wooden horse in his studio saddled like the Emperor's steed, and passed hours in studying his figure and the fall of the skirts in a mirror." Probably the best kown of Mcissonier's works, certainly of his Napoleonic pictures, is the "1807," a page of triumph." Upon the "1807," a page of triumph." Upon the "1807," the artist worked for fifteen years, and it remains, we believe, the largest of his works. He modeled all the horses in wax, and every figure was drawn from life. This is the picture for which the late A. T. Stewart paid $60,000, and which Judge Hilton parchased from his estate and presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

At the International Exhibition held in Paris in 1807 Mcissonier was represented by fourteen pictures. He received one of the eight grand prizes. The same year he was made commander of the Legion of Honor. In 1877 he sent to the Salon a a portrait of Dumas. He also painted portraits of Mr. W. H. Vanderbilt, Senator Leland Stanford and Mrs. J. W. Mackey. The latter was displeased with hers and destroyed it, occasioning no small amount of gossip. This was in 1883. Out of the unfortunate affair grew the Meissonier exhibition of May, 1884, intended by the friends of the artist as, in a way, a "vindication."

"The Law's Delay." "The Jones County Calf Case" is the title of a legal action which will pass into the history of Iowa jurisprudence as one of its most celebrated causes. The calves invelved were not more than ordinary calves—born in a very common manger, nourished with the usual facteal fluid and turned out to grass as soon as they were able to work their grinders successfully. able to work their grinders successfully. The calves that were, if alive, must be gray and decripit cows. Twenty years ago the action was begun. It has been in the lower courts several times and has graced the Supreme Court with its presence on more than one occasion. The attorneys have waxed fat and rich over it. The original parties to the suit have spent all their money prosecuting it. The young bovines may have been worth $45 when the fun began. The total cost of the case amounts to about $20,000. If any one believes that there is nothing in litigation let him contemplate these figures.

Dinner Dances.

From the New Fork Times.

A dinner dance is an idea imported from England and improved on here. It ranks with many of the good things that are amusing and fascinating because they are bad. It is directly opposed to all accepted affective that are survived in the proposed of the state of things. The dance after a dinner is often a punishment of pleasure. The dinner dance is only a reception with several hostesses instead of one, and the eating preceding instead of following. It has brought about one change. If one must dance one must have dancing legs, consequently young people must replace their elders at the festive board, and they naturally welcome the change with delight.

To be invited to dinners is an advance to a certain grade of social distinction and recognition for which debutantes hope and to which they look forward. A dinner has become much more an affair of amusement than it formerly was. So longer do the "bude" add to their litray, "From a dinner deliver us." They can to be asked to dinners; the invitatio i implies a selection. They feel they are recognized as women with minds. Most older people like this leavening of youth. They no longer wish to be left on the shelf of reverence; they want to reach back and assimilate themse we with youth and to be youthful. One happy change the dinner dance has brought wearily along by the lwar, it must stop some time; it must have a reasonable limit,

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 30. If we are to give credit to the outcome of the researches of the Viennese genealogist, Baron Hirsch, the new friend of the Prince of Wales, has a pedigree of soveral generations. It appears according to this perquisition that the family was of the Judengasse, Berlin, and that the most prominent member of it, the Baron, of course, excepted, was Abraham Hirsch, with whom Voltaire, in the course of his visit to Frederick the Great, had a famous lawsuit, whose extraordinary phases Carlyle has narrated with so much unction in the fifth volume of his "Frederick."
